

This Michigan Marco Polo, whose thrills of travel re-discoveries have been faithfully recorded in this column for more than ten years, is hitting the trail again.

We had a grandfathers who hit the trail for a lifetime. We like our travels in doses—every week as a steady diet. This time we are leaving behind, and with some pang of regret, a diverse assortment of camping paraphernalia, including a 9x12 tent, a collapsible spring bed, a folding camp table, a couple chairs, a memorable wood-burning stove that was designed originally to warm a fish shanty.

Yet, we are going to travel the way way. No more wrestling with tent poles in pitch blackness in a soaking rain; no more hopping wood to keep our little racket happy. No siree!

We are going to take our own cabin along with us. Any place our automobile can go, our new 9-foot Michigan-made house trailer can go. At least, so we think.

Having a snug apartment on wheels, ready to use when you arrive at your destination, is a luxury for this veteran camping fan. We don't know what our old buddies of World War I would say about this deluxe way of going places and seeing things. But, after giving it the works over the last four days of week-end, we can confidently say that it beats a 40 et box car all hollow.

One essential for trailer travel, we have learned, is that you must be on good speaking terms with your wife. The distance from the camped or davenport at the front to the Hollywood-style bed at the back is only 19 feet. In between is the kitchen with a stove, icebox, places to keep pots and pans and a lot of room for arguments.

There isn't a whole lot of space, you see. People who live in trailers must be like folks who live in glass houses, if anyone is silly enough ever to do that. You've just got to get along with the missus. If she hurled a dish or shoe at you, the result would be utter, dark disaster. You couldn't duck.

The missus is pretty well accustomed to our yen for camping outdoors. Several years ago, inspired by pictures she saw in an L. L. Bean catalog, she purchased a neat outdoors outfit. When it arrived and she put it on, lo and behold, what greeted her eyes was this: A poppy coat and baggy pants, all in deep green color that utterly defied fashion description. The poet of Mt. Pleasant, Webb McCall, once cast his optics on it and solemnly proclaimed: "L. L. Bean is my tailor, and I shall want."

Why did we happen to take the trailer plunge? It's awfully simple, maybe it's simply awful. During the war-years we jointly fostered a fund to finance a cabin in the w. k. piney woods of Northern Michigan. This summer we surveyed our summer's travel itinerary of newspaper meetings here and there. It seemed foolish to invest in a cabin, when we could be in Traverse City one week-end, and somewhere else the next. Hence, our cabin on wheels. Next week, after the Lowell Snowboat sails on Tuesday night, we're heading north for the Porcupine Mountains State Park and editors' get-together at Ontonagon. Michigan is a great place to live. Don't let anyone tell you otherwise.

Pure Oil's Wildcat Test Well Producing 20 Barrels Daily

County Oil Pool Now A Certainty

Now viewed as a sure new pool opener, Pure Oil Co.'s State No. 1-W-4 SW NW Section 17, Beaver Creek Township, Crawford County, is reported capable of producing from 20 to 30 barrels of oil per day from the Richfield formation at a depth of 4,300 feet.
Production now established on the wildcat test, while small compared to some wells in other fields, is regarded as comparable to deep wells in the East Norwich field, Missaukee County, six miles southwest of the new strike. In the Norwich field oil treatment usually increases production to a steady level of 50 to 100 barrels a day.

Kiwanis Club Notes

The Kiwanis Club of Grayling at their regular meeting held at the AuSable Inn, Monday evening, were hosts to Brig-General Ralph A. Loveland, Commander of the 46th Division of the Michigan National Guard, and his staff, Brig-General LeRoy Pearson, Adjutant of Michigan, and his staff, and Brig-General Joseph Cranston, Michigan area inspector for the 5th Army, and his staff.

The three Generals introduced their respective staffs and gave short talks. They were welcomed to the dinner and to a resumption of a custom of long standing, of the Commanding General and his staff of Camp Grayling meeting with the local club during their encampment here. The custom was broken off in 1940, when the Michigan National Guard entered the services of the country.

Thomas Stancil entertained the visiting military men with several solos and was joined by Don Gotro in several duets, which were immensely enjoyed by the visitors. During dinner, the club and their guests were entertained by the music of a trio furnished by Harold MacNeven, who with George Morrison, was in charge of the party for the honored guests. These two Kiwanians were also in charge of the programs for the month of July.

The Kiwanis softball team is scheduled to meet the Lions Club team in the third of a five-game series at the Grayling Golf Club's new ball diamond at 6:30 Friday evening. The game will be a tie-breaker, as each club has the record of a win and a defeat.

Educator Suggests Tour of Traffic Offices To Show "Safety In Making"

By Roscoe L. West
Chairman, National Commission on Safety Education.

A million and a half new drivers will get behind the wheel this year. Almost all of them will be teen-agers in their third or fourth year of high school. Unless the nation's educators responsible for the training of these youths recognize the importance of safety education, the new drivers will be a million and a half potential menaces to life and limb on our streets and highways.

Crawford County Library

Last week's Avalanche carried a story that more than warmed the hearts of the board and staff of the County Library. This was the news under the Lions Club head, that plans were already under way to provide a ceiling projector for the use of invalids or convalescents not able to hold a book to read.

The newly developed projector was demonstrated at the various Library Workshops throughout the summer, and all over the state librarians went home in a state of excitement over the possibilities of the new device for extending library privileges to many to whom they had not been available because of physical handicaps. Like all others, Mrs. Augustus Funck, local librarian, had high hopes that some local organization would become interested in the project and assist the library in procuring one. However, the community-minded Lions were already in the field, with their plans and money already earned to purchase the projector. Once accomplished, this is a service that will long be remembered to the credit of the Lions, who will have trained personnel to assist patients in operating the projector, as well as having provided the machine.

More than 300 books have already been microfilmed, and are available in the price range from $1.20 to $5.00, depending on the length. As soon as the projector is actually available, arrangements will be made to start a collection of book-films.

Severine Johnson has been a patient at Mercy Hospital.

Governor Sigler To Inspect State Guard And Camp Grayling Today

Training Session Ends This Saturday

Michigan's newly activated 46th Division today awaited inspection by Governor Walter H. Walker, Lt. General Walton H. Walker of Chicago, Commander of the Fifth Army. Among today's many activities will be demonstrations by picked U. S. Army teams of the newest type weapons, including the sniperscope, sniperscope, and other advanced equipment.

Many contests are also under way at the camp this week, among which is one open to any soldier in the Division, to design a shoulder patch for the 46th that would be appropriate to Michigan. Another is the revival of the Stewart Medal which is yearly awarded to the camp's outstanding soldier. The winner will be named today and will be presented with the medal by Governor Sigler.

Also, the camp's softball championship is being decided this week with playoffs continuing each evening. The winner will be presented with a huge silver trophy, donated by Harold MacNeven of Grayling.

The 46th's 105 and 155 mm. howitzers boomed on the Frederic firing range on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, under the direction of Colonel Gordon A. MacDonald. Infantry companies, machine gun companies and other troops are hard at work at the Camp in ground maneuvers.

Highlight of the 15-day training session was a division review held Saturday afternoon at the camp parade grounds overlooking Lake Margrethe. The review was the first by the newly activated 46th Division and the first Guard review held at the camp since 1939. The 97 units integrated into Michigan's 46th were reviewed by Brig-General Ralph Loveland of Ann Arbor, Division Commander, and Brig-General LeRoy Pearson, of Lansing, Adjutant-General of Michigan.

Errors Cost The Locals A Win

After holding a 10 to 1 lead in the last of the sixth inning, Grayling dropped a ball game to Lewiston, by a 14 to 10 score, Sunday. From the sixth to the eighth inning, when the game was called because of rain, the Grayling fielders committed six misplays and the Lewiston batters got to Phil Keway, who developed a sore finger and lost the hop on his fast ball. Keway allowed but six hits up to the sixth inning. Steadier fielding, however, would have saved the day for Grayling.

Anthony and Carlson each hit safely three times to pace the Grayling attack, while Kellogg, Gildner and Thompson each connected twice for hits. Muhr and Keway each added one safety to completed Grayling's 14-hit attack.

Rice, Pynnnonen, Schroder and Ferguson paced the Lewiston attack, each with two hits. Keway struck out 3, walked 3 and gave up 11 hits. He was replaced by Kellogg, who walked one and gave up two hits. Gildner then took the mound and walked three and hit one batsman and gave up one hit. Gildner also connected for Grayling's only extra-base blows—a pair of doubles.

Roscommon defeated Comins by a 4 to 0 score, in the only other game in the league last Sunday. The other two contests being rained out. It was decided at a league meeting Monday night to replay the Grayling-Atlanta game here on Saturday, August 15. Previously the game was forfeited to Grayling, as Atlanta's players were late in arriving.

Next Sunday will find Comins facing Grayling here, with Fairview at Mio, Rose City at Atlanta and Lewiston playing host to the league-leading Roscommon Shamrocks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Nelson are spending a few weeks here visiting their respective parents.

Driver of the car in the ditch failed to yield the right-of-way, even to an ambulance. He ran through a plainly visible stop sign, directly into the path of the ambulance, and was knocked across the road. Driver was killed, and a passenger was injured. Emergency vehicles have the right-of-way—but at other times, too, it pays to be courteous at intersections. Failure to grant right-of-way ranked second as a cause of motor vehicle deaths in 1946, National Conservation Bureau advises; when in doubt, always yield the right-of-way.

Luxury Or Necessity?

Representatives of nations where there is no freedom of the press and where the people enjoy no privileges of personal liberty have often remarked that the American system of individual freedom is a luxury only rich nations may afford. This is a flimsy excuse for the realities of dictatorship. But would we be so different from these other nations which are tobogganing back into the dark ages, if we were hard pressed by economic chaos? Not if we are to listen to some of our most notable, self-styled liberals who claim with fearful urgency that should another depression descend upon America, she too would abandon the "luxury" of freedom. Some of them would even jump the gun by setting up a planned state now—fixing prices, rigging supply and demand to artificial standards, controlling production, and in effect, establishing government as a voracious god.

When this country was founded, the going was tough. Freedom was the first goal of life. It was not achieved easily. The privilege of going to the church of one's choice was not considered a luxury, nor were ownership of property and the right of assembly and free speech. These things were as vital as air. To infer, no matter how indirectly, that they would become luxuries at a time when millions of people over the whole world are looking to the United States to keep alight the torch of civilization, is inexcusable.

Very likely there will be depressions in this country in the future, as in the past. They can either be short pauses in the march forward of a great nation—or any one of them can be the jumping-off point for state socialism and the subjugation of the people. It will depend upon our point of view—whether our freedom is a luxury or a necessity.

"Not Responsible For Wife's Debts"

A young man came rushing into the Clarion office the other day and wanted me to print an ad—"right quick"—saying he won't be responsible for his wife's debts from now on, as he's leaving her for good immediately.

I allowed as how the forms were all closed up, and it was too late to take his ad. He says: "All right, Monday then"—and we agreed on Monday.

Of course, the forms weren't closed. But I had kind of an inkling of what might happen. Then Sunday he phones me, and says, kind of sheepishly: "You can forget that ad. Me and the missus have everything all patched up. And we're having a friendly glass of beer, right now."

From where I sit, if you give folks time enough to think things over, those hasty quarrels that come so often from misunderstanding will give way to tolerance and common sense.

Archbishop Mooney To Be At Tri-State Congress

Catholics of this region will have an opportunity to attend the pontifical high Mass of Edward Cardinal Mooney, archbishop of Detroit, on Sunday, September 14, when the prelate will pontificate
at the Catholic Tri-State Congress in Grand Rapids.

The Mass will be celebrated in the Civic Auditorium, which has a seating capacity of 5,500. It will be the second time that the Cardinal will have officiated in the Grand Rapids diocese since his elevation to the rank of Prince of the Church. On the previous occasion he consecrated Bishop Thomas L. Noa in March of last year, but the seating in the Grand Rapids Cathedral was limited to 1,100 by special invitation.

A personality of world importance by virtue of his office, Cardinal Mooney is 62 years old. His career is among the most brilliant of all American churchmen, as he has served the church in many important posts. After his ordination in Rome in 1909, he returned to the diocese of Cleveland where he served as pastor and later as professor of theology. He was then transferred to the American College in Rome as spiritual director, and then was appointed apostolic delegate to India, the first American churchman to be given the important diplomatic portfolio of apostolic delegate.
From India he was transferred to Japan in the same capacity, and was named bishop of Rochester in 1933. In 1937 he was appointed archbishop of Detroit.

ment, there may be a materials testing laboratory where, following experimentation, decisions are made about how road beds may be laid and what surfacing the roads should have for durability and safety. The equipment, methods and costs have a direct bearing on traffic safety.

To improve motor vehicle travel, almost every state and many large cities employ traffic engineers whose main job is to make streets and highways safer and more efficient for the drivers who use them. Here are spot maps showing where and how different types of accidents have occurred.
The traffic engineer is generally responsible for installing traffic control signals, signs and pavement markings. These activities are directly related to the interests of new or would-be drivers in the teen-age group.

State motor vehicle departments, highway patrols, and local police departments usually have accident record divisions where information on all reported accidents are available for study and use. Here is data on the number of traffic accidents by type, location, and persons involved. Much other information, such as weather and road condition, causes of accidents and types of vehicles involved, is tabulated in the accident record division for a variety of uses.

In the traffic court the details of serious traffic accidents are given a public hearing, with statements from those involved in an accident and witnesses who saw it or were on the scene shortly after the accident occurred. Hearing a traffic case as it is tried in court is a very valuable experience for the teen-ager.

The opportunities for teen-agers to see "traffic safety in the making" are many and varied. Any resourceful teacher can, through projects such as are suggested here, provide valuable learning experiences.

was to occupy, the doctor promising to call her if Mrs. Martin should call for her again. Basil suggested they go down and have one of the servants fix them some coffee and sandwiches before they went on to bed. Kit, awakened by this time, liked the idea and they walked together down the stairs and into the enormous kitchen. Several of the servants were still sitting around the table enjoying a midnight snack after the evening's excitement.

Kit was willing to join them at their table and even pulled back a chair on which to sit, but Basil hastily intervened.

"Anna," he addressed a large woman sitting at the head of the table who evidently was the cook, "we'll have some coffee and a plate of sandwiches in the living room right away." He took Kit by the arm and led her out the door.

"But, Baz—why couldn't we just have joined them in the kitchen. It was all so sort of friendly like." She looked at him, not quite understanding his actions.

"Kit, you're certainly going to have a lot to learn before you can manage Martindale. Of course, you will have a few years under my mother's tutelage. That should help." He sat beside her on the couch before the fireplace.

As if her mind had suddenly become a kaleidoscope, she saw before her a clear picture of the coming years: she watched herself growing in the knowledge of her proper social position, her friendly suggestions becoming the right sophisticated commands. She saw herself like Basil and his family, looking at Jennifer Martin with a burning hatred in her eyes, and wishing only for her early death, so that they would have a clear title to Martindale. Oh, definitely she could learn all this and more from Basil's mother. Somewhere inside her body a pain stabbed her.

J. D. was in bed when Johnny got to the room on Main Street. However, he was not asleep and Johnny knew the moment he closed the door that he was anxious to know what had happened to him this evening.

Johnny told him of the narrow escape Jennifer Martin had had and how he had almost missed finding her. His modesty almost hid his heroism from J. D., but taking this into consideration from past experiences, his father surmised that Johnny had certainly saved the old lady's life at the risk of his own.

"You lay off the story tomorrow. I'll write it up and give you some well-earned credit—and I know better than to trust that to you, son," J. D. laughed and got back in bed.

"No, J. D., you can't do that. She might not like it." Johnny quickly erased the idea.

"Might not like the idea of you saving her life?"

"No—not that. But having it in print for everybody to read. No, Dad. Let's forget about it. Maybe she'll decide to go on with the park now; that's what I'd really like."

"You didn't say what caused the fire. Bill Brown—he's the one that told me about it—said they didn't know exactly." He frowned and looked at Johnny. "You hear, son?"

"No—come to think of it, I did not. But it was probably old wiring or..." The memory of Jerry Murphy prowling about Martindale flashed across his mind.

J. D. noticed the change of his expression and slowly nodded his head. "I know exactly what you're thinking, boy. It was Murphy all right. I wonder if they got him yet?"

An Unexpected Call
In the Night

The remembrance of the accident just twelve hours before came to him. And with it came the picture of the patient little woman waiting in the quiet room of the hospital. The child—he wondered if he would live, and even more than the child, he held pity for the child's mother—Jerry's wife. How could she stand anymore than what she already had? He thought of the emblem of justice and decided how ironically the scales were tipped for such a defenseless creature.

"It's going to be tough for Mrs. Murphy," J. D. said quiet. "But there's nothing we can do about it, Johnny. We can't defend Jerry to the police, because you know and I know that he's guilty. And yet if they haven't caught him—if he's got an alibi, I'm not going to condemn him... understand, not for his concern, for I'd just as soon see him shot. But for his wife... She's had too much."

"Then the only thing we can do is wait and see what happens Dad?" Johnny asked as though he were not satisfied with this sort of inactivity.

"That's right, son. Just wait."

J. D. turned his face.

But they had not long to wait, for at that moment the door bell rang. J. D. jumped out of bed and threw his robe around him. Mrs. Kinsey, their landlady, had suggested when anyone rang the bell after midnight that J. D. should answer the door, since it was usually for him. He switched on the light in the lower hall and hurried to unlock the night latch. The porch was dark and he could hardly make out the features of the man standing in the shadows.

But when the man pushed by him into the house he recognized him immediately. It was Jerry Murphy.

"I've got to see you, Davis, right away!"

CHAPTER X

Jerry Murphy closed the door behind him quickly, not waiting for J. D.'s invitation to enter the house. He looked out the window on the porch suspiciously, but there was no one in sight.

"Come upstairs, Murphy." J. D. knew that he would have to talk to the fellow in order to get rid of him and he was not anxious to have anyone see them talking.

Johnny showed his surprise when the two men entered the room. "He was still dressed, sitting in a chair looking over the evening's edition of the Clarion. He was not just sure what Murphy's appearance meant."

Murphy had sobered considerably since the last time J. D. had seen him. He pulled up the desk chair and sat opposite the two men.

"Suppose you know about the old lady's house?" He waited until they nodded their heads, and then continued. "Well, I wanted to talk to you, see? And straighten up any ideas you might be havin'. I suppose you figured I done it? Well, I didn't, see, an' what's more, I can prove where I been all evenin'. I got witnesses, see?"

Johnny interrupted him. "Why tell us all this, Murphy?"

"Well, seems as though you and me was always runnin' into each other out there and so naturally I knew you'd think I done it—but I didn't, see?" He was on the verge of going into his explanation of his witness again and then remembered his innocence. "Well, nobody would get any ideas like that about me 'cept you two, and I just wanted to make sure you got it straight. Why, you know I wouldn't never do nothing like that. All I ever wanted was to get some money outa them, see?"

His face was flushed red with the exertion of his explanations.

"You know how much we all been through today, my woman and me. Why, you don't know what that kid of mine means to me." And I sure am goin' after the old lady for that, even if he doesn't die. I can still get plenty for it. I'm gonna get me a good lawyer. I'll get her this time!"

He saw that J. D. and Johnny had lost interest in his words and he hastened back to the subject he had come here to discuss.

"You wouldn't be putting any ideas in their mind, now, would you, about the fire? Specially since you know I didn't do it." He looked directly at Johnny. "Might get mixed up in it, yourself, huh, Martin catchin' ya that night an' all. Where were you, or have ya got a excuse, too, Davis?" He threw back his head and laughed loudly.

Johnny, knowing this to be a mild assertion of blackmail, stood up as if to end the conversation before anyone went too far.

"I can watch out for myself, Murphy. I only hope you can do the same." He walked out the door and down the hall to the bathroom. He thought if he had stayed in the room with Murphy another minute he could not hold himself responsible, so much did he loathe the man.

The Lutheran Junior Aid will give a garden party at Danebod Hall, Wednesday, July 30th, 6 to 9 p. m.

Grayling is proud to have as a citizen Mrs. Johanna Langenberg, who received her naturalization papers July 8. Hanna, as she is known to many friends, came to this country on New Year's Day, 1923, and made her home in Detroit. She has been a resident of Grayling since 1941. Mrs. Earl Burns and Dr. C. G. Clippert stood with her when she received her citizenship papers.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Beal and Dean and Mrs. J. C. Briggs, of Ferndale, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Funck. Dean is remaining for the rest of the summer.

DANCE at the Hayloft, Friday, 9:00 p. m. to 1:00 a. m. Sponsored by V. F. W.

Kenneth and Arthur Blake and Gene Gobe, of Buchanan, spent several days last week as the guests of Rev. R. C. Puffer and family.

Mrs. George Pearson and daughter Barbara, of Saginaw, were guests last week of the former's sister, Mrs. Alfred Sorenson, and family.

CARD OF THANKS
We want to thank our relatives and many friends for their contributions and kind sympathy extended to us in the death of our husband and father, William L. Williams.

Many thanks to Rev. R. C. Puffer, June Gross and Sorenson Brothers for the fine way in which they conducted the funeral services.

Mrs. Bertha Williams and family.
